

KELLYVILLE CONSUMERS SERVICE
JUL 31 1982

Handwritten text in a non-Latin script, possibly a form or ledger, overlaid on the photograph. The text is arranged in several lines and columns, with some characters resembling numbers and letters. The script is dark and somewhat faded against the sepia-toned background.

HONOURING OUR PEACEKEEPERS

An Overview of Aboriginal Veterans & Peacekeepers

For thousands of years, the roles of peacekeeper, warrior, and veteran were extremely important for First Nations people. Yet the history books do not provide Canadians with an understanding of this rich and vital piece of our culture.

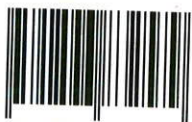

Today, veterans are revered at every community powwow and Remembrance Day ceremony. The eagle staff and flags are carried in with honour by veterans and peacekeepers from the local community. Every gathering introduces these great men and women and their achievements. We recognize that these soldiers overcame great challenges and made inspiring sacrifices to help this nation.

They fought to make sure we keep our freedoms that we enjoy today.

Ningwakwe Learning Press would like to share just a glimpse of this truly remarkable aspect of First Nations' history.

Published by
Ningwakwe Learning Press
© 2008

ISBN 978-896832-57-9

9 781896 832579

